Because there's one thing no one's ever going to take from you and me, so help us God,

And that's America!

I'm not talking for myself alone, or for my family.

I'm talking for all Americans.

So, the words could just as well be yours as mine.

"I'D GIVEN UP HOPE . . ."

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS LEONARD CATLETT, interview: Ann Leuberg, North Coast

"It was artillery fire that got me. We were going into a hedgerow in Normandy to clean out some Germans, but they pulled out and their artillery boxed us in. I got it between the shoulders. The pressure on my spine paralyzed me from the ribs down. All the medicine in my canteen had been killed or wounded. I lay there a long while before someone found me. By that time my wound had become infected. They gave me plasma and carried me first to an aid station and then to an evacuation hospital set up on the beach. I'd given up hope. All I wanted was to die. I wanted to get it over with. But those Army nurses gave me new hope. They told me I'd pull through, and I am pulling through. I still have to be operated on to get back the use of my legs. I've got a lot more pain ahead of me. But it's good to know the nurses won't let me down."

"I'D HAVE BEEN A GONER..."

STAFF SERGEANT JOHN SCHAFER, Infantryman from Dublin, New Jersey

"Hit the ditch, boys, here come the Japs." Like the rest of the men I dove for the nearest hedgerow in a Normandy field on the road to St. Lo. The low-flying planes dumped their bombs along the road. Only one missed and that one hit near me. I was badly wounded by the shell fragments and the next thing I knew I was in an evacuation hospital and an Army nurse was giving me blood plasma. If it had not been for that I'd have been a goner. I'm an old hand at plasma for I've had it twenty times. Now they're giving me whole-blood transfusions. There were Army nurses with me all the time and, fixed as many of them were, they'd spend their off-duty time with us wounded men, helping to bring us back to where we thought things were really worth fighting for. We need all the nurses we can get. If you can, join the Army Nurse Corps."

This advertisement appears in the
SATURDAY EVENING POST issue of July 10.

“If you ask me, it’s HOME they’re fighting for!”

“You can take my word for it—and this is the fourth war I’ve lived through. I was just running around, knee-high to a tad-pole, when my father came home in ’64. But I remember he said then what my husband said in ’98 and what my boy said in ’18. All three of them expressed it different ways, but what they meant was, ‘Thank God our home is still the way it was when I went away!’”

“And now it’s my grand-son’s turn and when he’s out there waiting under a tropical moon I know what he’s thinking. He’s thinking about getting back HOME and he’s fighting so that it will be just like it was when he left it—with no foot-prints of the Germans or Japs around his front door!”

For a long while, “Crosley” has been a familiar name in America’s homes. It has been part of happy family groups listening to the radio or playing phonograph records. It has found a place in women’s workday lives—giving them welcome, drudgery-saving help with electric refrigerators, efficient gas and electric ranges, washers, ironers, and other useful household appliances.

But today, these Crosley peacetime products have been set aside. In place of home radios and phonograph combinations, military radios, radar and electronic devices for war purposes are flowing from Crosley production lines. In place of household appliances such as refrigerators, the larger, heavier, more complex pieces of apparatus that companies such as Crosley can produce are being sent in war-winning quantities to our fighting men.

The pace and demands of War have stimulated new inventions and the manufacture of new products with new materials. Crosley, when Peace comes, will make even finer radios, refrigerators with the patented Shelvador and other appliances for the home, and the Crosley Car for civilian use.
