OUR WOUNDED NEED HELP!

Ten Ways You Can Release Nurses for Military Service

DO ALL OF THESE:

- 1. Remember hospital beds are at a premium. Defer a non-essential operation when your doctor asks you.
- 2. Save the nurse's time at the hospital by asking only for necessary service.
- 3. Do not employ a special nurse except for critical illness. Use your local visiting nurse association or hourly nursing service for illness at home.
- 4. Guard your own health. Don't take unnecessary risks.

DO AT LEAST ONE OF THESE:

- 5. Work in a hospital in any type of housekeeping duties.
- 6. Become a U.S. Cadet Nurse if you are eligible.
- 7. Become a Red Cross Volunteer Nurse's Aide if there is a program in your community. If you are a trained aide, serve at least ten hours every week.
- 8. Learn how to take care of members of your own family. Take a Red Cross Home Nursing course.

HELP RECRUIT A NURSE:

- 9. Urge every nurse and retired nurse not eligible for military service to take an essential civilian nursing job.
- 10. Seek out every nurse classified as available for military service. Urge her to apply at once to the American Red Cross or wire collect the Surgeon General of the Army.

OUR FREEDOMS AND RIGHTS

WE LOOK FORWARD TO SECURING, through planning and cooperative action, a greater freedom for the American people. Great changes have come in our century with the industrial revolution, the rapid settlement of the continent, the development of technology, the acceleration of transportation and communication, the growth of modern capitalism, and the rise of the national state with its economic programs. Too few corresponding adjustments have been made in our provisions for human freedom. In spite of all these changes, that great manifesto, the Bill of Rights, has stood unshaken a hundred and fifty years. And now to the old freedoms we must add new freedoms and restate our objectives in modern terms. These are the universals of human life:

FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND EXPRESSION, FREEDOM TO WORSHIP, FREEDOM FROM WANT AND FREEDOM FROM FEAR

Any new declaration of personal rights, any translation of freedom into modern terms applicable to the people of the United States here and now must include:

1. THE RIGHT to work, usefully and creatively through the productive years;
2. THE RIGHT to fair pay, adequate to command the necessities and amenities of life in exchange for work, ideas, thrift, and other socially valuable service;
3. THE RIGHT to adequate food, clothing, shelter, and medical care;
4. THE RIGHT to security, with freedom from fear of old age, want, dependency, sickness, unemployment, and accident;
5. THE RIGHT to live in a system of free enterprise, free from compulsory labor, irresponsible private power, arbitrary public authority, and unregulated monopolies;
6. THE RIGHT to come and go, to speak or to be silent, free from the spyings of secret political police;
7. THE RIGHT to equality before the law, with equal access to justice in fact;
8. THE RIGHT to education, for work, for citizenship, and for personal growth and happiness; and
9. THE RIGHT to rest, recreation, and adventure; the opportunity to enjoy life and take part in an advancing civilization.

These rights and opportunities we in the United States want for ourselves and for our children now and when this war is over. They go beyond the political forms and freedoms for which our ancestors fought and which they handed on to us, because we live in a new world in which the central problems arise from new pressures of power, production, and population, which our forefathers did not face.

Their problem was freedom and the production of wealth, the building of this continent with its farms, industries, transportation, and power; ours is freedom and the distribution of abundance, so that there may be no unemployment while there are adequate resources and men ready to work and in need of food, clothing and shelter. It is to meet this new turn of events, that the new declaration of rights is demanded. But in formulating these new rights, we are not blind to the obligations which go with every right, obligations of the individual to use well his rights and to insist on the same rights for others, and obligations of the community to support and protect the institutions which make these rights actual. We believe that the American people are ready to assume these obligations and to take the private and the public action they impose.
